FOREWORD

This is a title catalogue of the Arabic MSS kept in the Museum of Jos and the Lugard Hall Library in Kaduna.

The authors would like to thank Mr. B. Fagg for putting the MSS of Jos Museum at their disposal for the purpose of cataloguing. They would also like to thank Al-Haji Muntaka Coomassie for helping with some queries and for his promise to catalogue the remaining MSS of the Jos collection which are in Arabic script but in Fulānī, Ḥausa and Yoruba languages. These are well over three hundred manuscripts. The authors would also like to express their thanks to Al-Haji ʿUmaru Guanda, Speaker, House of Representatives, Kaduna for sending the Lugard Hall Library collection to them during their stay in Zaria.

PREFACE

It is only fair to put on record that our knowledge of these manuscripts dates from April 1963 when Mr. B. Fagg, former Director of Antiquities, Federal Republic of Nigeria, and Director of the Jos Museum in Northern Nigeria, who is currently the Curator of the Pitt-Rivers Museum, Oxford, kindly drew out attention to the Jos Museum's collection of Arabic manuscripts. He also stated that al-Haji Muntaka Coomassie of the Institute of Administration, Ahmadu Bello University, Zaria, had played the greatest part in purchasing the collection for the Jos Museum. Dr. A. Bivar, formerly the Curator of Jos Museum, and presently Lecturer at the S.O.A.S., University of London, had managed to purchase for the same Museum over a hundred of those manuscripts.

In the last two years we have been able to complete the present catalogue which contains over one thousand of those manuscripts, practically all that is kept at Jos Museum and thirty manuscripts kept in the Library of Lugard Hall, Northern House of Representatives, Kaduna, Northern Nigeria.

It should not be inferred, however, that we are only aware of the presence in Nigeria, of the Jos collection and that of Lugard Hall. We know of Ibadan University Library's collection which is much smaller than the Jos collection. We know of Sokoto Native Authority's collection and of al-Haji Junaidú, Wazirin Sokoto's collection. Al-Haji Junaidu was kind enough to spare many hours in five consecutive days in January 1964 when we read and discussed with him various manuscripts in his private collection. We also know of the Judicial School's collection in Kano and of the collection of the National Archives at Kaduna. All these collections await cataloguing.

Moreover, we are told that the Jos collection is adequately representative of the various branches of study reflected by those Arabic manuscripts. This we can confirm after our examination of al-Haji Junaidu's collection, Lugard Hall and Kaduna's National Archives collections.

The main subjects covered by these manuscripts are: History, Religion, Language (Arabic Grammar), Poetry, Astronomy, Astrology, Mathematics, Folk-lore, Prose, Geography, Education, Sociology, Logic and Jurisprudence (Sharī'a).

To discuss, even briefly, each of these subjects and show how it is represented in the Jos collection would require more than that which we would like to include in this short introduction. Yet we feel that something must be said, no matter how brief it is.

History, which is a very popular subject, is very well represented. The Jos collection contains a number of Sir Richmond Palmer's former collection. Kano, Daura, Sokoto, Katsina and many other town in Northern Nigeria are well served. Al-Haji Junaidu's collection is especially important for the correspondence with the Mahdiyya movement of the Sudan. Al-Haji Junaidu, himself a historian, a poet and a great literary figure, has contributed to the history of the Fulānīs in his work. Ta'rīkh al-Fulānī. There is no doubt that the history of Nigeria in particular and West Africa in general will become richer when full use of these manuscripts is made. Mr. B. Fagg rightly believes that those manuscripts may well be the only reliable sourceof information on Nigerian History and other aspects of Nigerianlife.

Islam seems to be the most favourite subject in most of those manuscripts. The reader will be astonished at the huge number of works on Ḥadīth and Fiqh (the four orthodox Sunnī Schools of Muslim thought) he finds among the collection. Many very old versions or copies of Ṣaḥīḥ al-Bukhārī are there. The Mālikī Sunnī School is particularly well served. This is due to the fact that it was the School prevalent in Morocco and North Africa from where Islam spread to the West African territory and the Sudan. One can read not only those classical works on Ḥadīth and Fiqh, but also the scholarly works of late Fulānī leaders and thinkers such as Shaikh ʿUthmān b. Fūdī, Shaikh ʿAbd Allāh b. Fūdī, Sultan Muḥammad Bello and others. Their contribution in this field cannot be underestimated. They were both statesmen and religious thinkers.

The teachings of Arabic, the language of the Qur'ān is also very well looked after. The major classical works on Arabic Grammar (Naḥw) are copied and commented on. Pre-Islamic famous poems (al-muʿallaqāt) are all there. There are also many Arabic poems composed by the natives from Nigeria and West Africa. These follow the same Arabic patterns. Poems in Ḥausa, Yoruba and Fulānī languages are written in Arabic characters and Arabic poetical metres. Other works in those languages are abundant in the various collections and they are again written in Arabic characters.

As far as the Arabic script is concerned, the majority of the manuscripts are written in Naskhī script with some Kūfic letters. This Naskhī has some maghribī style, especially the cursive lettering and the placing of the dots for the letters qāf and fā'. Diacritical points are not omitted and orthographic signs are used, almost in every manuscript and they are put in a colour which is different from that of the text. Special reeds are used in writing those manuscripts. Even the later ones are not written with pens or fountain pens. This is still observed until now in both Zaria and Sokoto and may be in other towns in Northern Nigeria.

The ink itself was locally made and prepared by the copyists. The paper is of various kinds and comes mainly from Italy and Great Britain. This is indicated by the various trade marks. One should stress the various beautiful figures represented by those trade marks as described in different places of this catalogue.

In cataloguing these manuscripts we did our best to give the names of both books and authors with the spelling given in the manuscripts themselves. It was indeed rather difficult to identify authors in some cases, because their names are usually given after two pages or more in the text, on the one hand and, sometimes, the first pages were missing.

Finally we have to say that where it was possible we identified the missing authors and put their names between two brackets. Lugard Hall Library's manuscripts are given the abbreviation MSK while Jos's are MS. It may also be noticed that a small number of the MSS given in this catalogue are not commented upon by us. This was due to time pressure since we were to leave Northern Nigeria for final leave rather unexpectedly. We, therefore, thought it better to register these MSS than to leave them.
